

PUBLIC LEDGER

FOURTH YEAR.

MAYSVILLE, KY., MONDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1895.

ONE CENT.

LARGEST IN THE CITY.

Purely Business!

The columns of a newspaper represent a cash value. No publisher can afford to give advertising "notices" free any more than a merchant can give his counter free gifts of dry goods or shoes. A newspaper is a legitimate business concern. Its columns are its stock in trade, and advertisements should be paid for, no matter in what part of the paper they appear.

The Continued Calls

upon THE LEDGER for free notices have become so burdensome that we are forced to publish the following terms:

For Notices of Suppers, excursions, fairs, or other public entertainments where a fee is charged, and for obituary notices, resolutions of respect, &c., THE LEDGER will charge FIVE CENTS A LINE, and hereafter this will be the invariable rule. This, however.

Does Not Include

notices of Lodge meetings or Church services, which must not exceed ten lines.

Avoidance of Disputes.

Misunderstandings are unpleasant. The rate for Business Notice in THE LEDGER is 10 cents a line for the first insertion and 5 cents a line for subsequent insertions. A customer orders a five-line local notice in the paper. "I'll tell you when to take it out," he says to the bookkeeper. But he forgets all about it. The notice runs for two months—52 times—the bill is $13.25. When he finds it out there is a "kick" and a controversy, followed probably by an icy feeling. Now, to obviate this trouble, no "I'll tell you" notices will be accepted hereafter. Let's have a definite agreement at the outset and the termination will be pleasant all around.

All matter for publication must be handed in before 9 o'clock in the morning of each day.

If you have friends visiting you, or if you are going away on a visit, please draw up a note to that effect.

P. J. Murphy, Jeweler.

I'm a man who's most unbending,
Who reviles
Woman's follies, never ending—
Woman's wiles.
I'm a chronic woman hater,
Who would ne'er to women cater,
Yet there's one who proves me traitor
When she smiles.

Woman's time with utter folly
She beguiles,
And there's something melancholy
In her smiles.
I can take her mental measure,
Prove she lives for naught but pleasure,
But there's one who seems a treasure
When she smiles.

You may hear me often try to Hide my
With suggestions women fly to
Some good school;

At the sex I'm ever calling,
But I find I have one failing—
When she smiles I cease my wailing,
As a rule.

You may think in what I'm saying
I but drool;
That, in fact, while thus inveighing,
I'm a fool;
But I tell you most sincerely
I'm a woman hater clearly,
And this one exception merely
Proves the rule.

ROMANTIC MARRIAGE.

Rev. John Cheap Unites a Happy Couple at Greenup.

About four years ago Mr. T. W. Breckinridge of Greenup advertised for a lady correspondent.

His advertisement was answered by Miss Blanche McClanathan, a school-teacher of Iowa.

For a long time the correspondence was conducted under assumed names. But as interest and affection grew, each party disclosed their real identity, and an engagement followed.

This culminated in a happy marriage a few days ago, the ceremony by the Rev. John Cheap, formerly of this city.

The groom is wealthy, the owner of several sawmills and much forest land in the county.

REGISTERED MAIL UNSAFE.

GOVERNMENT WON'T PAY INDEMNITY IN CASE OF LOSS.

Big Falling Off in the Business Due to This Fact—In Nearly All Other Countries the Sender is Compensated—Interesting Figures.

One hundred and five registered letters were destroyed by the burning of a mail-car at Newport, Tenn., the other day. Undoubtedly nearly all of them contained sums of money. To insure their safety the senders paid to the Government eight cents on each letter, besides the postage. Nevertheless, they will get not one cent of compensation for their loss.

No wonder that the registry business of the Postoffice Department is steadily diminishing. The people are losing confidence in the system as a means of insurance. Though the fee has been reduced from ten to eight cents, the number of letters and parcels registered during the last fiscal year was, according to The New York World, less than 11,000,000. Four years ago the number exceeded 15,000,000 annually. What is wanted is safety, and the system does not give it.

When a mail-car or Postoffice is robbed it is always the registered matter, advertised on its face as valuable, that is taken. In 1890 the Postmaster General of the United States advocated the abandonment of registration, on the ground that it was "fruitful only of danger to what it was designed to protect."

The remedy is very simple. The Government ought to grant compensation for registered letters lost or destroyed.

Nearly all foreign countries give such insurance. In Great Britain, for example, the registration fee is only four cents, and if the letter is not safely delivered to the addressee an indemnity of $10 is paid to the loser. A graduated series of fees is so arranged that the sender of a parcel can insure it up to $250, this maximum guarantee requiring the payment of twenty-two cents. The parcel must be marked with its value.

It is stated in the postal regulations of the United Kingdom, rather quaintly, that payment of such insurance will be made by the Postmaster General "not in consequence of legal liability, but voluntarily and as an act of grace."

Registration of money or jewelry is compulsory; such articles are not permitted to be sent in the ordinary mails.

At the same time parcels addressed to foreign parts cannot be registered, though for India they may be insured. The British Government pays up to $10 for the value of any ordinary unregistered package that is lost in its mail service. This applies only in the United Kingdom, and it does not govern at all if the parcel is improperly wrapped or contains eggs, liquids or very fragile articles.

Nearly all foreign countries insure letters and packages up to $10 in their domestic service without extra fee. On the other hand no indemnity is paid even for registered mail matter by the United States, Brazil, Bolivia, Paraguay, Uruguay, Chili, British India, Japan and Congo. These are the only exceptions to the general rule. The Third Assistant Postmaster General of the United States in his last two annual reports has recommended to Congress the granting of an indemnity on registered letters and packages not to exceed $10. This is sure to be done sooner or later.

Turning to the regulations of the International Postal Union, one finds that the sender of a registered letter package to a foreign country is entitled to $10 in case of loss, unless the latter has been occasioned by "force majeure"—meaning war. This indemnity must be paid by the Government that dispatches the package. However, that Government may recover the amount from the Government in whose territory the loss was incurred.

The adoption by Uncle Sam of an indemnity limited to $10 would increase the confidence of the public at very little cost. During the last fiscal year 654 pieces of registered matter were lost. Supposing the maximum payment to be granted in each instance, the entire expense of such insurance would be $6,540 for the twelvemonth. This is a trifle compared with the money gained that would accrue to the Government from the increase in the registry business that would follow the acceptance of the indemnity plan. The latter would take from the ordinary mails a vast number of money letters and would make the transmission of such letters much more safe.

The registry system practically prevents dishonesty on the part of postal employees. Every person who handles a registered letter or package must give a receipt for it. If it is lost, the Postoffice Department can put its hand, so to speak, on the spot where it disappeared. It can go right to the individual who had it when it vanished, and can hold him responsible. If it is a case of theft it is known exactly at what point search ought to begin, and the missing letter is very apt to be recovered.

It is considered most desirable that valuable packages should be taken out of the ordinary mails, where their presence is a constant temptation to postal employees. Thefts by them involve heavy expenses for detective work, trials, etc. Thousands of people make a regular practice of sending money in the ordinary mails, because they believe that the chances of loss are increased by registration.

It is astonishing how reckless business men are in this matter. Every month about 1,300 letters, without a word of su scription on the envelope, reach the Dead Letter Office. These are among the most valuable letters lost in the mails, most of them being from business men in the big cities. It is supposed that in many cases the senders are interrupted when about to address them. The boy comes in, sweeps them off the office desk, carries them to the Postoffice or letter-box and drops them in without noticing that the envelopes are blank.

During the fiscal year the Postoffice Department received 5,980 complaints of losses of registered domestic mail matter. Of these 3,847 were investigated, and it was found that in 2,456 of the cases there had been no loss at all; the letters or packages had been delayed merely through lack of proper addresses or for other causes. Of the 1,391 pieces ascertained to have been lost 914 were recovered and restored to the owners. Allowance being made for the balance of cases awaiting investigation, the number of actual losses is estimated at 654. This was only about half the number of pieces lost during the previous year, representing the loss of only one piece in every 22,061 pieces handled. Special improvements have been introduced recently in the registry system, making the latter more safe.

The United States Government uses the registry system to a large extent, sending 2,500,000 packages and letters in this way annually, containing $100,000,000 in bonds, currency and revenue stamps.

A Great Book Free!

When Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N.Y., published the first edition of his great work, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, he announced that after 600,000 copies had been sold at the regular price $1.50 per copy, the profit on which would repay him for the great amount of labor and money expended in producing it, he would distribute the next half million free. As this number of copies has already been sold, he is now giving away, absolutely free, 500,000 copies of this most complete, interesting and valuable common sense medical work ever published—the recipient only being required to mail to him, at the above address, twenty-one (21) one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only, and the book will be sent post-paid. It is a veritable medical library, complete in one volume. Contains 1008 pages, profusely illustrated. The Free Edition is precisely the same as that sold at $1.50, except only that the books are in strong manilla paper covers instead of cloth. Send now before all are given away.
